WINTER ROSES

Between heaven and earth, these delicate melodies invite us to discover a space of tenderness, of mystery and of dynamic and joyful hope. An invitation to allow oneself to be carried away by the harmonious sounds of the skilfully played psalterion, to discover a moment of peace and explore with confidence.

Born of improvisation, as well as the journey of prayer, these musical meditations are profoundly inspired by the Franciscan charism. An old Umbrian legend recounts that one day in winter, Saint Francis and Saint Clare journeyed together toward Assisi. Because of contentious allusions of certain persons, Francis felt obliged to separate from Clare. To console her in her sorrow, Francis promised that he would see her again "when the roses will blossom". At the same moment, they had the impression that all around them, the hedges and the little shrubs were covered with a vast number of roses. Clare picked a bouquet of them and placed it in Francis's hands. Since that day, they were never ever separated.

GLANCES

Discreetly, the delicate music of the psalterion opens a resonant space for contemplation and withdrawal. These simple and harmonious melodies gradually lead us into inner silence. Francis and Clare of Assisi were ravished and transformed by a glance from the icon of Christ hanging in San Damiano. Then they could scatter seeds of peace, generosity and kindness all around them.
